Highlights

1. Defeat the Terrorists and Neutralize the Insurgents

U.S. Navy Rear Admiral Mark Fox, an MNF-I spokesman, said May 2 that although the security situation in Iraq continues to be challenging, there are signs of progress being made in Operation Fardh al-Qanun including: a significant reduction in sectarian murders, increases in the number of weapon stockpiles seized, and increases in actionable tips provided by local citizens. Despite these signs, however, security can ultimately only be achieved by building a loyal, capable, and professional Iraqi Security Force in and around Baghdad. Operation Fardh al-Qanun is intended to improve security in the Baghdad area, providing the time and conditions for the Iraqi government to make progress in economic and political development.

2. Transition Iraq to Security Self-Reliance

The Taji Regional Training Center, Iraqi Signal School, and Taji Engineer School are now officially run by Iraqi forces, following transition of authority ceremonies at each location May 1.

3. Help Iraqis to Forge a National Compact for Democratic Government

The al-Anbar Provincial Council convened in Ramadi for the first time after nearly a year of meeting in Baghdad, due to the security situation in Ramadi. Provincial Governor Mamoun Sami Rashid al-Awani met with representatives from across al-Anbar to discuss the resolution of major issues in the province, including economic development, improved infrastructure and continued improvements in security.

4. Help Iraq Build Government Capacity and Provide Essential Services

Completed U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Gulf Region Division (USACE GRD) electrical generation projects have provided an additional 1,420MW of potential generation capacity to Iraq's national grid.

Highlights

5. Help Iraq Strengthen Its Economy

At the May 3 International Compact for Iraq meeting held in Sharm al-Shaykh, Egypt, the EU Presidency announced that the EU's financial support for Iraq is anticipated to reach 1.8 billion euros (including grants, debt relief and loans).

6. Help Iraq Strengthen the Rule of Law

The main administrative body for Iraq's courts, the Supreme Judicial Council, has asked the Iraqi Parliament to revoke immunity for a prominent Sunni lawmaker, possibly clearing the way for his arrest on charges of provoking sectarian violence. If the request is granted, Adnan al-Dulaimi will be the second Iraqi lawmaker to have immunity from prosecution lifted. The first, Mish'an al-Juburi, was a former member of Parliament who was indicted last year on charges of embezzling millions of dollars.

7. International Support for Iraq

UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon co-launched the International Compact with Iraq with Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki in Sharm al-Shaykh, Egypt May 3. The Compact is a five-year national plan that includes benchmarks and mutual commitments from both Iraq and the international community, all with the aim of helping Iraq on the path towards peace, sound governance and economic reconstruction.

8. Strengthen Public Understanding of Coalition Efforts and Public Isolation of the Insurgents

In the third attack against the radio station in five months, gunmen raided the offices of independent radio Dijlah, killing two employees and wounding five before bombing the building and knocking the station off of the air.

[1.] Defeat the Terrorists and Neutralize the Insurgency

Operation Fardh al-Qanun:

- U.S. Navy Rear Admiral Mark Fox, a Multi-National Forces-Iraq spokesman, said May 2 that although the security situation in Iraq continues to be challenging, there are signs of progress being made in Operation Fardh al-Qanun including: a significant reduction in sectarian murders, increases in the number of weapon stockpiles seized, and increases in actionable tips provided by local citizens.
 - Despite these signs, however, security can ultimately only be achieved by building a loyal, capable, and professional Iraqi Security Force in and around Baghdad.
 - Operation Fardh al-Qanun is intended to improve security in the Baghdad area, providing the time and conditions for the Iraqi government to make progress in economic and political development.
- Fox also said that securing Baghdad is the main effort, and Coalition Forces continue to establish joint security stations and combat outposts in the city and surrounding belts. Currently, there are 57 joint security stations and outposts in Baghdad.
- Four out of the five US Army “surge” brigades are now in Iraq, along with two additional U.S. Marine Corps battalions. The remainder of the “surge” combat forces is scheduled to be operating in their areas by mid-June.

To date, national electricity supply for 2007 is only one percent below 2006. Because demand is increasing, however, the relative decline in national hours of power is much larger: an average of 8.9 hours for January 1-March 14, 2007, compared with an average of 10.5 hours for the same period in 2006.
