

Dr. Burgess Weekly Video Address April 29, 2015
“The first 100 days”

---

Hello, this is your Congressman, Michael Burgess. This month, the 114th Congress finished its first 100 days. The national media may always seem to fixate on Washington’s gridlock and dysfunction. However, House Republicans have produced results.

In the first 100 days, we’ve passed 62 bills to increase tax freedom, improve Medicare, move closer to energy independence, grow the economy, and fight human trafficking.

And of these pieces of legislation, eight have passed the Senate and become law.

One of these eight was a landmark entitlement reform bill to replace Medicare’s flawed payment system for providers. Ever since I came to Congress, I have been working to repeal that system for seniors and Medicare’s long-term integrity. With this Congress’ new energy, we finally got it done.

These accomplishments mark the second most productive first 100 days for House Republicans in more than a decade.

Though we still have plenty of work to accomplish for the American people, I’m optimistic this efficiency will serve as a blueprint for future success.

There’s no question about it; when it comes to getting the job done, Republicans in Congress rolled up their sleeves and delivered results.

We aren’t stopping there. Moving forward, I will continue promoting opportunity, freedom, and government accountability on your behalf.

As always, I welcome your questions and comments on this issue.
Thank you for taking the time to listen. May God bless you and your family, and as always, may God bless Texas.
